LONDON: SATURDAY, AUGUST 30th, 1862

Congress—Deputies.

The Chamber met yesterday, in the number of 97.

The Cordoba railway was the order of the day. After reading the bill, Dr. Gonet-ngez, as finance-minister, recommended its adoption by the Deputies, as passed by the Senate.

He said—The concession in this case is identical with that of the Chascomus line, excepting that in the latter enterprise the authority granted by Congress on that line was for 7 leagues per mile, while the Cordoba line is fixed at 6.060 If the country were otherwise constituted I would prefer concessions of another character; according them up for public competition or contract, and giving money, instead of a guarantee on money. This measure, however, is not disadvantageous to the Republic, that I advise the Hon. Chamber to accept it.

The bill was then passed, without opposition, on general reading.

Art. 1 was placed in particular discussion, and, after a few observations from Dr. J. A. Garcia in opposition to guarantees, but making exception in favor of this case,

Sr. Gonzalez said—That the surveys made by Mr. Cosmopolitan of American col-dary [illegible] handed over by the Parana Government to Mr. Wheelright, while the present is more full in the delineation of the railway is at the option of our Executive.

The Minister of Finance [illegible] said—That these plans were in the power of some parties who might not attend to business, and exorbitant sum for them—hence the Government wished to be at perfect liberty to follow whatever line, or even the route no matter whose survey it was.

Art. 2 was passed in committee, as also Art. 3.

Art. 3 being read without opposition,

The Minister observed on Art. 4 that the terms were similar to those of the Chascomus line—excepting the grant of lands to the Cordova Cu which were more ample than in the other, owing the low figure here signified for construction. The San Fernando line at £1000 per mile in consequence of difficulties and its short distance. The Chascomus line affords an easy change of men or goods to Buenos and should exist as it now does, otherwise [illegible] the Cordoba line, although I believe it will be entirely successful. The concessions have expired, and ordinary railways [illegible] necessary to get to market to-day.

Dr. A. Alsina hoped no one in the Presidency had to go to Cordova for vote, but the Chamber set to the opening—it was passed unanimously.

Arts. 5, 6, 7 and 8 were read without opposition.

Art. 10 was objected to by Sr. Marmol, and stated that, as to commencing the works in 12 months, the Company might possibly down two small posts and say "we have commenced."

The Minister replied—That it mattered nothing why a thing began, provided always they finished the stipulation of completing 25 miles within 3 1/2 years.

The article was then passed like the rest.

Art. 11—"saving the tariff upon to state-inland revenue was proposed by the chamber who proposed that Government should have a right to reduce prices when ever the dividends amounted to 12 per cent."

Sor Marmol said—The English capitalists make great difficulties about this interference of Government in the tariff, and the personality in Buenos Aires.—I even believe the Chascomus line is hobbled about the personality not being in London, and if we do not [illegible] to the point the Southern railway may never be a reality.

The Minister said.—No matter what be the consequence, we must never let the legal restraint of other railway companies out of Buenos Aires, [illegible] difficulties for the same surrendered the Chascomus railway, he may as well pay attorney's fee out of a public purse, for it will never [illegible] concessions such as ours in agreement. The Cordoba line is highly popular in England, whose merchants want to open up a trade for cheap manufactures, in favor of the rest of South America. If we [illegible] Buenos Aires a spirit of [illegible] we may have competition, and the consequence of French silks and [illegible] goods.

The article was passed in its general features.

Arts. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, and 18 were passed unanimously.

Respecting Art. 19 the Minister stated that the Government would exact a levy deye 0, although the provincial Congress in formed by Wheelright exempted [illegible] from [illegible] 3 of whom were Directors of the Bank of England.

The last Arts. were also admitted.

General Mitre on the Capital

IMPORTANT MESSAGE.

Buen s Ayres, August, 26/62.

To the Hon. Pres. A. Assembly.

The Executive has the [illegible] of which he has [illegible] and in accordance [illegible] of the offices determined by Art. 12.

[illegible] the Executive [illegible] the Constitution [illegible] of the Province [illegible] at the same time [illegible] of the Nation [illegible] to the Congress [illegible] 3 days with the exception of [illegible] Art. 12.

Your Honorable, in consulting the general interest of the Nation, and those peculiarly of the Province which you represent, will doubtless [illegible] Buenos Ayres [illegible] of the Capital [illegible] Congress [illegible] Buenos Ayres [illegible] to the Nation [illegible] to secure [illegible] Nation and the Government [illegible] Buenos Ayres [illegible] to the Nation [illegible] of the Government [illegible] Buenos Ayres [illegible] to the National Government.

But, in order, conjointly with the Government, to find out [illegible] would accept any plan which would lead to the same result, and which, while consulting my personal [illegible] would answer to the present necessities of the country, and to the necessary [illegible] the permanent organization of the Argentine Union as solid as [illegible], having in its heart a zonal Act, to declare peaceful in the center of our land proceeding all [illegible] to the [illegible] the [illegible] Bloody [illegible] requires civil.

Nevertheless, considering as far as possible, all the differences, objections, and exigencies both present and future, the Government in the course of the debate formed its project, to declare the city of Buenos Aires capital, federalizing the municipal area, and leaving the institutions of the Province to the Provincial Legislature. This law would, moreover, have to be revised at the expiration of 15 years, and at the same time fulfil the [illegible] required.

The National Congress has sanctioned the constitutional law, which the Executive has the honor to present to you for the object indicated.

While every one have been the result of the debate it has brought to light some traces which now [illegible] and form the basis of [illegible] of the Republic—that is to say, that the only [illegible] Buenos Ayres to cede to the grand and ardent work of the organization ending to-day the glorious revolution which instituted that the decision of B. Ayres should irrevocably unite with the [illegible] of the Republic, and that the great work the Province has [illegible] two fine, grand cities, for all, that [illegible] constitutional order so much needed, and universal liberty and the [illegible] of the grand destinies [illegible] Republic.

[illegible] Buenos Ayres is the natural seat of the authorities of the Republic, and that to easily effects to fulfil the hopes and representations of the people, they must reside in the [illegible] of the Nation [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

LONDON, 1862.

Catalogue of the Articles

EXHIBITED IN THE

Uruguay Department.

No 19. Glass jar of Yerba Maté (Paraguay Tea, the Ilex Paraguaensis.)

This herb is found growing wild in several departments of the Uruguay Republic, but is greatly esteemed by the residents, who prefer it to tea—drinking it by sucking through a tube. Large bales have been imported into England, but its consumption was prevented by an order issued from the Customs, charging it with the same duty as tea. It is an extremely wholesome beverage, with something of the flavor of the black tea, and is very refreshing. The adjoining republic of Paraguay derives a very large revenue from the supply of Yerba Maté to the other portions of South America, it being in universal favour all over the Continent, where it is also prized as a luxury and valued as a necessary.

No 20. Three bottles of wine, the produce of Paysandú and Tacuarembo.

The grapes flourishes in many parts of the Republic, and wine of excellent quality is produced with very little trouble, and inexpensively.

No 21. Two-ice bottles Liquor Exhibited by M Canard

Resembling the renowned "Chartreuse" in flavour, and equal to the finest Curaçoa. Liquor in perpetuum, and in fashion from precious effects.

No 22. Twenty one samples of wood grown in various departments.

No 23. Fourteen samples of wood grown on the banks of the River Uruguay.

By far the larger portion of the country is open to ustmeland, covered with rich crisp luxuriant grass resembling in appearance an English meadow; but among the river banks, there is almost invariably a broad strip of well timbered land, producing the most beautiful and valuable woods. The banks of the river of Australia, which is too hard for common use, there is in the Republic an abundant supply of the most costly market woods, and there is scarcely a single description for wood from timbered land. Rough sawn planking and logs are exported at moderate in price. Some of the hard woods are distinguished for their beauty, and it is highly probable that more than one of them will be largely introduced into the cabinet making trade of this country. The blue, noyo the less been greatly prized by the jury.

No 24. Earthen tiles and pipes Exhibited by Señor Basco

No 25. Earthen tiles, Exhibited by John Barbado Esq

No 26. An earthen set of tiles Exhibited by Señor Barco

In many parts of Uruguay there are immense beds of the finest clays. The statuette and tiles are merely exhibited to show the plastic nature of the clay, and its adaptability to various valuable purposes.

No 27. Two jars of farina, from the department of Tacuarembo

This farina is being portions of Uruguay is used in the place of the potato. The dried beef is ground and boiled up with the farina pr.duce an excellent stew, or species of thick soup, that is highly nourishing. Farina somewhat resembles tapioca.

TRAVELS IN BOLIVIA.

CHAP VIII.

Approach to La Paz.

The mountain of Illimani is the highest in the world, with the exception of Himalaya, being 21,800 feet above the level of the sea.

We arrived at nightfall at the post house of Ventilla, and though but fifteen miles from the town of La Paz, it was the most miserable we had stopped at in our journey being totally unprovided with any kind of provisions except a few beans and Indian corn.

Next morning our path lay across a flat table land, mostly covered with loose stones, and a few low shrubs. Appearance the city of La Paz, its environs, and of Illimani with its snow and glaciers, and Illimani, 21,000 feet, entirely from our view. No grand and imposing scenery presented itself as the approach to the Capital; for, we saw no towers, or steeples; but occasionally heard the sound of Cathedral bells, wafted by the wind, as they were struck loudly on our ears. Huge barren rocks, and snow capped mountains stood apparently at hand, presenting an impassable barrier to our entrance. Suddenly arrived at the verge of a deep precipice, we beheld the tile roofs of the City of La Paz. Here we stopped, for a few minutes, to admire a scene so wonderfully strange. We then commenced our descent, down a steep and narrow pass, winding round the face of the precipice, the distance to the town we found a league, and seemed within passing about it never thicker, cost us an hour to reach. About midway down our precipitous course, we saw sprinkled on the sides of the steep, where shadowed with bushes & tufts of grass we now came into a small ravine, which led to a miserable cul-de-sac, where our postmasters and passports were inspected ; we then rejoiced our way and soon arrived at the city of La Paz, admirably constructed in several small hills, near the base of the mountain of Illimani.

The town is paved from the best houses of both one & two, which may convey an idea of the depth of the valley in which it is constructed.

There are several Churches and public buildings in the city, which I need but indicate here as you are not to suppose we went to the house of Don José Sosa, a Spanish merchant, to whom we had letters of recommend to us, and there met with a hospitable reception.

Finance Depart- ment.

Buenos Ayres August 29th 1862.

Considering that in the interest of the best interests of the country, a proper course at the will be for the exercise that exigency may require, table all measures of this character as to be carried out by the Executive power, from the Government of Uruguay, in view that one of the most effective means of giving will be to avoid exercise the extraordinary faculties to meet the wants of the present, by means sufficient to the support the project on of the country, the Government deems that a committee of competent persons be instituted for the object of enquiring into such, and taking into consideration the universal many judg necessary, and action on of the most convenient means which may be adopted to obtain the desired results; upon the understanding that the Government is disposed to contribute on its part, within its means and attributes, to the necessary expenses for the prosecution of that investigation. To this effect Messrs José Gregorio Lezama, Gustavo Samuel Mario, Mariano Saavedra, Antonio Cambaceres and Ambrosio P. Lezica, are appointed to compose said committee. Let this appointment be communicated to them, published and given to the National Register.

NORBERTO DE LA RIESTRA.

LOCAL EVENTS.

UNIVERSITY.—Don Benigno Jerdin, a native of Montevideo, and Don Carlos Ruiz of the province were examined in philosophy on Wednesday and obtained a satisfactory certificate.

They will shortly pass at a Degree, previous to the being graduated.

DEAD LEGISLATURE.—Don Manuel Tedin, Oficial of the Statistical Department has accepted his resignation. Elections are to take place the 15th September for third vacancy.

Don Felix Frias is to be sent as Senator for this country.

PATAGONIA.—We have news from the east settlement of a satisfactory nature, as everything was quiet

The Indian caudillo Buentemuallo has arrived on a civil mission with his family and servant. This caudillo is of pure Patagonian race.

PATAGONIA.—A petition has been required for the invention of an power, for enclosing land and making roads.

SIGHT THE LAST.—Colonel Julian Murga, commander of this regiment, has received orders to send his head quarters at San Juan.

A GOOD INDEX.—We must appreciate a remark in Cote Tribune, respecting the Paraguayan Chaloons lately arrived.

These Indians, unlike those of the Pampas, have no instance of Spanish blood in their veins, and they are in every respect, of the pure American race.

Several of them have the principal figure to be of four feet seven inches and a half, and have long teeth of the Negro and Colorado races, and their hair is of a thick coarse description.

We think the exaggeration of our colleague, of taking their portraits, as well as the only answering from subscribers, will not only be an attestation to verity in our public manner, but also very particular of note not to receive.

The expense would be very small, and we worth the pains.

The Indians, during their stay in the city, will have the appearance of a Paraguayan Chaloon, and Patagonian, the main characteristic would consider best to carry on it.
